Things to remember when citing government documents!

1. No one guide to citing government documents.

2. Rely on style manual and special guides and webpages to properly cite documents.

3. Documents often use corporate authors instead of personal authors.

4. There are many specific types of documents, e.g. hearings, statutes, laws, etc. which makes it challenging.

5. Use the name of the department, office, sub-agency, or institute responsible for document and, if it isn’t well known, also give name of higher level dept. to which it belongs.
